Minnesota Ovarian Cancer Alliance (MOCA)
Launches New Web Site
Donated by Aware Web Solutions

Minneapolis -- Minnesota Ovarian Cancer Alliance (MOCA) is thrilled to announce the launch of its new web site: www.mnovarian.org. Aware Web Solutions, who donated their design services for the project, worked closely with MOCA for the past 10 months developing the site.

“Aware is honored to have the opportunity to support this wonderful organization in its online efforts,” said Trevor Olson, President of Aware Web Solutions. “We always set out to design and build the best looking and most practical Web site possible. Based on the positive response the site has received, I think we achieved that here.”

MOCA’s web site features an in-depth section about ovarian cancer treatment options, recurrences, access to medications, new treatment advances and clinical trials. One compelling aspect of the site is a focus on individual survivor stories, located on the home page, which will feature new women on a rotating basis. There is a section about support for ovarian cancer survivors and information about special events. In addition, MOCA’s educational programs (Survivors Teaching Medical Students and Grand Rounds) are highlighted as well as research the organization has funded. A visitor to the site will also be able to access information about ovarian cancer legislation and will find an extensive listing of links to other useful sites.

“The goal for our new web site was to have one of the most comprehensive sites available about ovarian cancer,” explains MOCA executive director Kathleen Gavin. “We feel the user friendly design created by Aware Web Solutions has helped us achieve this.”

MOCA hopes that women newly diagnosed with the disease, or survivors who are dealing with a recurrence, will find pertinent information that will be beneficial when making decisions about their care. The site is also intended to be helpful to family members and friends who want to understand ovarian cancer and provide support. Members of the press are encouraged to bookmark the site so they can reference it when looking for accurate, reliable information about the disease.

MOCA is committed to keeping the site updated with new research as well as current information about fundraising events and educational programs.

Minnesota Ovarian Cancer Alliance, a six-year old non-profit organization, funds ovarian cancer research in Minnesota, raises awareness of the disease, and provides support to women with ovarian cancer and their families.
